Prof. Dr. Lucas Meijs

Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University.

Professor of "Strategic Philanthropy and Volunteering" at Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University, the Netherlands. Lucas's research focuses on Civil Society, volunteer/non-profit management and corporate community involvement. He has served for seven years as a member of the Dutch Council on Social Issues, the official advisory body of the Dutch Government and the national task force for Volunteering Policy.

Lucas will speak about the position of volunteering and volunteer energy in contemporary society. How does volunteering relate to broader civil society? Who are the new stakeholders? What can be done to create an even better future for volunteer involving organisations?

Peter Smyth
Sport Ireland

Peter is currently Research Director at Sport Ireland having previously worked as Secretary and Corporate Services Manager. In his role he commissions and manages research into key sports policy issues, particularly around all aspects of participation in sport.

The research being launched today involved a short survey of migrants registered on I-VOL (the national volunteering database) and several focus groups facilitated by Dublin City Volunteer Centre. The presentation will provide an overview of the key findings from this research.

Mid-Morning Masterclasses

Lisa Byrne
Volunteer
Coordinator at Depaul

Lisa Byrne has been involved in the not-for-profit sector for nearly 14 years. Since 2010 Lisa's role has involved developing and implementing a volunteer programme in a cross border homeless organisation. Depaul received the IIV award in 2015. Lisa is involved in all processes of maintaining and developing best practices within the organisation, inclusive of achieving the re-accreditation of IIV in 2018.

Insights and Successes from Depaul's Volunteer Programme

This masterclass will explore practical tips and tools to enrich your current practices when auditing, recruiting and retaining your volunteers. Lisa will share how Depaul used the Investing in Volunteers (IIV) quality standard to create effective volunteer management practices and an effective organisational strategy. She will share insights from Depaul's implementation of good quality volunteer management practices and how they maintain these on an on-going basis.

Terri O'Brien & Sacha Johnston
Volunteer
Ireland

Terri manages the Corporate Volunteer Programme at Volunteer Ireland. Terri offers consultancy to companies on developing and implementing their employee volunteer programmes. She also leads on Investing in Volunteers. Terri will be joined by Sacha; previously the manager of Dublin City South Volunteer Centre, now a consultant in the Community & Voluntary Sector, focusing on quality standards, communication and best practice in all things volunteer related.

Employee Volunteer Programmes: Thinking Outside the Box

An innovative and interactive workshop for companies and charities to explore unique and meaningful ways of engagement. Share examples and brainstorm new and different ways to create effective, innovative and sustainable employee volunteer programmes and projects. You'll come away with tangible ideas, a fresh perspective and new connections.

Lizanne Frawley
Learning & Development Specialist
at Cats Protection

Lizanne Frawley is a learning specialist working in the area of organisational development. A 20 year background in the voluntary sector including Citizens Advice, Volunteer Now and a range of small organisations has included both operational and strategic roles. She is also a volunteer with Rosie's Trust. People dynamics form the foundation of Lizanne's work with the creation of meaningful volunteer experiences as her motivation.

Change Management in Volunteer Programmes

Two of the most challenging change issues I have experienced in volunteer programmes resulted in conflict, factions and walkouts. In these times, wise words from others, simple models and theories arrived like small life-rafts. This interactive workshop explores these and how, with even small changes, volunteers are at the heart of positive change plans and activities.

George Gillespie
Manager at
Volunteer Now
Enterprises

George has been involved in promoting volunteering and developing & organising a range of volunteering projects for 20 years. He is the key contact for development and support, to embed volunteer best practice based on Investing in Volunteers standards for 1,750 awards for all grant holders in Northern Ireland. He has delivered training from Bahrain to Brussels on a wide range of Volunteer Management topics.

Managing “Flexivols”- One off, Episodic and Ad hoc Volunteers

Volunteers with very little time or sporadic time to volunteer; how do we recruit them, make it a meaningful experience and hope to retain them? This workshop will explore and offer ideas on how to build these roles to be vibrant and motivational, how to give real and meaningful feedback, recognising these volunteers’ contributions and offer further suggestions on how we keep “flexivols” involved.

Stuart Garland
Training & Programmes
Manager at
Volunteer Ireland

With 26 years of experience in the community & voluntary sector Stuart is recognised as Ireland’s leading specialist in the field of Volunteer Management and Leadership Training. He has developed volunteer programmes for close to 100 events & festivals. He is a lead trainer in the use of Volunteer Impact Assessment and IiV. He was a member of the Associate Faculty of NCI and is working on the development of accredited volunteer management & leadership training with NUI Galway.

Handling Volunteer Performance Issues

Performance problems are gaps between what is expected from volunteers and what is actually happening. In this session we will identify some of the causes of volunteer performance issues and examine options for dealing with volunteer performance gaps and support for changed behaviour. We will explore some frequent volunteer performance difficulties and explore common techniques of disengaging a volunteer.

Aisling Doherty
Mental Health
Ireland

Aisling is an IUHPE registered Health Promotion practitioner working in the mental health and charity sector for over ten years. Aisling’s roles have always involved working with and supporting volunteers in a variety of capacities. Currently as Mental Health Promotion Manager with Mental Health Ireland she oversees the delivery of mental health and well-being programmes and initiatives.

Five Ways to Well-being

This workshop will increase awareness and understanding of how to implement actions that will support your mental health and well-being as a volunteer manager. We will explore the definitions of mental health and well-being and gain a deeper understanding of the steps we can take each day which will look after our mental health and well-being. The workshop will focus on research carried out by the New Economics Foundation of evidence based actions to improve personal well-being.

Investing in Volunteers

Terri O'Brien

Congratulations to the organisations being presented with their Investing in Volunteers Awards including Aware, COPE Galway, Depaul, Senior Line, and St. Francis Hospice. liV is the national quality standard for good practice in volunteer management. It provides organisations with a framework to benchmark and improve the quality of their volunteer programme, enhancing your reputation as an organisation where volunteers want to be involved and ultimately helping you deliver a quality service to your clients.

Square peg in a round hole:

Developing roles to adapt to volunteer needs

This session will look at statistics around the demand for different ways of volunteering such as short term, virtual and skills based volunteering; explore how organisations can adapt to changing volunteer needs and hear from volunteers and Volunteer Managers who have embraced new ways of volunteering.

Launch of the Postgraduate Certificate in Volunteer Management & Leadership

NUI Galway, St Angela's College Sligo, Volunteer Ireland and Volunteer Now.

Conference 2020

Announcement of host City

The National Volunteer Management Conference 2020 will take place alongside the European Volunteer Centre Capacity Building Conference. The theme for the CEV conference 2020 will be Managing Volunteers at Festivals and Events.
